

But they did not understand this saying

When Jesus came down from the mountain with Peter, James and John, they found the other disciples disputing with the scribes after failing to exorcise a demon from a boy (Mark 9:14). This failure must have brought much scorn from the enemies of Jesus. The distraught father of the boy pleaded with Jesus to deliver his only son from the demon which had rendered him deaf and dumb and caused him to throw fits (37–40; cp. Mark 9:25). Jesus rebuked those around him as a 'faithless and perverse generation' (41). The disciples also lacked faith and the perverse scribes may have been gloating at their inability to deal with the demon. Jesus told the man to bring his son to him and as he came, the demon threw the boy down in a convulsion. Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit and the boy was healed.

While an astonished crowd was still marvelling at the mighty works of Jesus, he told his disciples to pay close attention to what he was going to tell them. 'The Son of man is about to be delivered into the hands of men.' But they did not understand this saying, and it was hidden from them so that they did not perceive it (44–45). They could not understand how the one who has such mighty power over demons and diseases could be taken by men and they were afraid to ask him for an explanation. Some people may be weak in their understanding of spiritual things while their hearts are right with God. The Lord Jesus was so patient with the disciples. Are we patient with those who are slow to learn or who are babes in Christ?

*O Master, let me walk with thee
In lowly paths of service free;
Tell me thy secret; help me bear
The strain of toil, the fret of care.*

*Help me the slow of heart to move
By some clear winning word of love;
Teach me the wayward feet to stay
And guide them in the homeward way.*

Bible readings from Luke chapters 5 to 9

From now on you will catch men

Peter, Andrew, James and John were partners in a fishing business (7,10). They had already become followers of the Lord Jesus and had recognised him as the Messiah (cp. John 1:35–51) but they were now called to leave their business interests to follow him. A great crowd pressed about Jesus near to the spot where they were mending their nets and Peter readily allowed Jesus to teach from his boat (1–3). When Jesus had finished teaching, he told Peter to take his boat into deeper water and to let down his net for a catch. Peter protested that they had toiled all night without success but he said, ‘Nevertheless at your word I will let down the net’ (4–5).

Peter was to learn that to trust in Jesus and to obey him brings blessing. The net began to break under the strain of the great catch of fish and James and John were summoned to help land the fish (6–7). Jesus knew where the experienced fishermen should fish because he knows all things and he is in control of all creation. An astonished and awe-struck Peter worshipped Jesus saying, ‘Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord!’ (8–9). This was less a request for Jesus to go away than a recognition that he is God (‘Lord’ – cp. John 20:28; 2 Corinthians 4:5) and a confession of Peter’s own sinfulness.

Jesus reassured Peter, ‘Do not be afraid. From now on you will catch men’ (10). Peter and his partners left their huge catch and their business interests to follow Jesus into full-time service. They had just seen the evidence that Jesus could supply all their needs and that the One who had given them a great harvest of fish would also give them a harvest of souls. We may have toiled for years with little success in the work of the gospel, we may feel inadequate in our attempts to witness to others, but we must remember that God is the Lord of the harvest (Matthew 9:38). Let us commit our work and witness for the Lord into his loving hands, trust in him and persevere.

This is my beloved Son. Hear him!

The Lord Jesus took Peter, James and John up onto a mountain to pray. He was transfigured as he prayed, and Moses and Elijah appeared in glory and spoke of his death (28–31). Moses represented the law and Elijah the prophets. In our Saviour the law and the prophets are fulfilled (24:25–27). Moses had seen the glory of God on Mount Sinai (Exodus 24:9–10), and on another occasion his face had shone, reflecting the glory of God (Exodus 34:29–35). The Lord Jesus does not merely reflect the glory of God – he is God. The brilliance and the majesty seen by the three disciples was that of God himself. The transfiguration of Jesus was to have a lasting impression upon them. John wrote, ‘We beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth’ (John 1:14). Peter records, ‘We ... were eye-witnesses of his majesty’ (2 Peter 1:16–17). We too will see the glory of Christ at his second coming (Mark 13:26; 2 Thessalonians 1:9–10).

The three disciples had been sleeping but were fully awake before Moses and Elijah departed. Peter, as often, spoke first and thought later. He said, ‘Master, it is good for us to be here’ and he suggested making three shelters, one each for Jesus, Moses and Elijah (33). While he was uttering these words, a cloud came down upon them and the voice of God the Father spoke from the cloud, saying, ‘This is my beloved Son. Hear him!’ (35). There are times when we feel the presence and blessing of God in a special way and would echo the words of Peter, ‘Master, it is good for us to be here’. Let us take time to read and to hear the word of God, to listen to what the Lord Jesus has to say to us, and to obey him.

*Master, speak! and make me ready,
When thy voice is truly heard,
With obedience glad and steady
Still to follow every word.
I am listening, Lord, for thee;
Master, speak, O speak to me!*

(Frances R. Havergal)

If anyone desires to come after me, let him deny himself

Jesus spoke of his own suffering (22) but he also taught that all who follow him must be prepared to suffer. He said, ‘If anyone desires to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me’ (23). Taking up the cross means making difficult choices which may lead to suffering, shame and persecution for Christ and his kingdom. It means letting go of pride so that we are not ashamed of Jesus (26). It means submitting to the lordship of Christ. If Jesus is not Lord of all in your life, he is not Lord at all. It may appear that we are ‘losing our life’ with all its freedom and joys, but this is not true (24). Self-denial does not bring misery, but great liberation and joy as we follow the Lord. J.C. Ryle observes, ‘A crucified Saviour will never be content to have a self-pleasing, self-indulging, worldly-minded people. No self-denial — no real grace! No cross — no crown!’ (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, page 310).

Discipleship is a costly business but the alternative to following Christ is too dreadful to contemplate. ‘For what advantage is it to a man if he gains the whole world, and is himself destroyed or lost?’ (25). To prefer the world and its passing pleasures to Christ is the height of folly. To be lost is to be alienated from God and the Lord Jesus Christ. It is to lose all hope of eternal life in heaven and everlasting joy. It is to be on the road to hell and everlasting misery!

What does it mean to be ashamed of Jesus (26)? It means feeling embarrassed about being a Christian. It means being afraid of men and their opinions of us. The worldling is not ashamed of his sin nor of his superstitious behaviour. Why should we be ashamed of our perfect, all-powerful, beloved Saviour who has done so much for us?

Jesus promised that some of those present would not taste death till they see the kingdom of God (27; ‘present with power’ – Mark 9:1). This probably refers to his resurrection and the outpouring of the Holy Spirit. The gospel had a tremendous impact upon the Roman world which the apostles were accused of turning upside down (Acts 17:6).

Lord, if you are willing ... I am willing; be cleansed

We saw yesterday that the Lord Jesus has power over creation because he is God. The leper acknowledged this when he worshipped him and confessed his confidence in Christ’s ability to heal him (12; cp. Matthew 8:2). He may have been uncertain about the Lord’s willingness to heal him, however. He asked, ‘Lord, if you are willing, you can make me clean.’ Leprosy was much feared in those times because it was incurable and sufferers were isolated to prevent it spreading. Jesus was moved with compassion for the man and touched him (13; cp. Mark 1:41). As soon as he said, ‘I am willing; be cleansed,’ the man was healed.

Every person born into this world is afflicted by a plague far worse than leprosy. The most developed psychology and all manner of theories and therapies have failed to cure it. I refer to the plague of sin which will, if not cured, lead to eternal separation from God. If you are not a Christian, perhaps you may wonder if he is willing to forgive you. If you come to him, he will never turn you away (John 6:37).

Jesus told the man not to tell anyone of this miracle apart from showing himself to the priest (for ritual cleansing and confirmation that the disease had been cured so that he could return to normal life – 14; cp. Leviticus 14:1–32). In his zeal the man disobeyed the Lord and spread the news of his healing. As a result Jesus was restricted in his ministry by huge crowds and for a time was unable to go into the cities (Mark 1: 45). We must beware of an uncontrolled zeal which hinders rather than advances the work of the gospel. We often suffer from the opposite problem however. We are silent when we should be witnessing.

The Lord Jesus had a very busy and tiring ministry but he was never too busy to pray (16; cp. 6:12; 9:28–29). If he needed to spend time in prayer, how much more should we recognise our need to pray often? Prayer is a low priority for many of us and we are the poorer for it. We have a God who is more willing to hear us than we are to pray.

When he saw their faith

The Lord Jesus came again to Capernaum where a great crowd, including scribes and Pharisees, thronged the house in which he was staying (17; cp. Mark 2:1–2). Four men brought a paralysed man to him for healing but they could not get near to him because of the crowd. These resourceful men took the paralytic up an outside stairway to the roof of the house. They opened up the roof and lowered the paralytic on his mattress. When he saw their faith, Jesus spoke to the man, forgave his sins and healed him (20,25).

The scribes and the Pharisees rightly recognised that when Jesus told the man that his sins were forgiven, he was also asserting his deity. They thought that Jesus was blaspheming because God alone can forgive sins. He knew what they were thinking (he also knows our thoughts) and he rebuked them (21–23). The Bible plainly teaches that the Lord Jesus is God, but many cults deny this. The title ‘Son of Man’ also speaks of deity (24; cp. Matthew 26:64–65; Daniel 7:13–14). After the man was healed, they were all amazed, and they glorified God and were filled with fear, saying, ‘We have seen strange things today!’ (26).

The four men recognised that their paralysed friend had a great physical need. When they brought him to Jesus, an even greater need was met – his sins were forgiven. When he saw their faith which was not put off by seeming obstacles (the crowd thronging the house), he rewarded that faith. It was a faith that persevered despite apparent setbacks. Without faith it is impossible to please him (Hebrews 11:6). What kind of faith does God see in you? Do you have the faith that perseveres in prayer for your loved ones and friends who do not know the Lord? Let us look on obstacles as an opportunity to prove the faithfulness of God.

But who do you say that I am?

After travelling north to Caesarea Philippi (cp. Matthew 16:13), Jesus asked his disciples, ‘Who do the crowds say that I am?’ Opinions varied, some thinking that he was John the Baptist, Elijah or one of the old prophets who had risen again (18–19; cp. verses 7–8). People continue to have different opinions about the Lord Jesus. They say, ‘He is the founder of Christianity’ – ‘He is a great religious teacher’ – ‘He is a wonderful example of a good person’ – ‘He is a prophet.’ All these answers are inadequate.

The Lord Jesus knows our thoughts (cp. 11:17), so why would he ask the disciples about the opinion of others concerning himself? The answer is that it matters little what others think about Jesus. What is all important is what you think about Jesus! He was using the first question that he put to the disciples to make way for his next question, ‘But who do you say that I am?’ (20).

Peter’s confession, ‘The Christ of God’ (20; cp. Matthew 16:16) acknowledged Jesus as:

- The Christ, the Messiah promised through the prophets of the Old Testament (Luke 24:27; 44–45; Acts 28:23).
- The Son of God. This is a title of deity (John 5:18). He is God (John 1:1–3; Romans 9:5). Any religion that denies that Jesus is God is a false religion.

We are not told why Jesus commanded the disciples that they should not reveal his identity as the Messiah (21). It was probably to prevent the people acclaiming him as a political leader who would free the nation from Roman servitude and restore Israel’s greatness. Jesus had a far greater mission. From this point in his ministry, he began to teach his disciples that he must go to Jerusalem where he would be killed and be raised the third day (22). The disciples had not realised that Jesus would suffer, die and rise again in order to save sinners (cp. Matthew 16:22). They were, however, unable to take in what he was saying to them (cp. verse 44–45; 18:31–34).

You give them something to eat

The feeding of the five thousand is the only miracle of Jesus which is recorded in each of the Gospels. Though Jesus and his disciples needed peace and quiet, he received the people and spoke to them about the kingdom of God and healed those who were sick (10–11). If we really desire to be used by God, we must have compassion on those who are lost and be ready to deny ourselves for the sake of the gospel.

They went by boat along the northern shore of the Sea of Galilee to a deserted place. There was no escape from the huge crowds, who went by foot around the shore to await the arrival of the Lord (10–11; cp. Mark 6:30–33). The busy day was passing and the weary, hungry disciples wanted Jesus to send away the multitude, but he said to them, ‘You give them something to eat.’ They protested that they had only five loaves and two fish and that the only alternative was to go and buy food for them all (12–13). The Lord Jesus ordered the disciples to seat the people in groups of fifty and then he blessed the loaves and fish. He miraculously fed them from just five loaves and two fish. Five thousand men, besides women and children all ate and were filled and twelve baskets were filled with the remains of the meal (14–17).

Those of us who are Christians know the answer to the desperate plight of men, women, boys and girls around us. We know that this world can never satisfy them and that if they are not fed with the bread of heaven, they will be lost for ever and perish in hell. Is the Lord Jesus saying to you, ‘You give them something to eat’? He will supply all your needs if you obey him and what greater satisfaction is there than seeing a hungry soul satisfied with the food of the gospel?

*O lead me, Lord, that I may lead
The wandering and the wavering feet!
O feed me, Lord, that I may feed
Thy hungering ones with manna sweet!*

(Frances R. Havergal)

He left all, rose up, and followed him

Levi is the same person as the Gospel writer Matthew (cp. Matthew 9:9). Tax collectors were hated and despised because they worked for the Romans who occupied their country. They also had a well-deserved reputation for being dishonest and corrupt. As long as they collected an agreed amount of tax for the Roman authorities, they could overcharge and keep the surplus for themselves. The tax payer had no right of appeal against the tax collector’s levy. The scribes and Pharisees put them on the same level as the worst of sinners and wrote them off as far as salvation was concerned (30).

The Lord Jesus called Matthew, one of these social outcasts, to follow him and to be one of those most closely associated with him. His other name, Levi, means ‘attached’. The tribe of Levi was attached to God in a special way, being set aside for the service of God. They provided the priests and teachers of God’s law and others involved in the service and ritual of the temple. Matthew Levi had not attached himself to the Lord’s work but to serve the heathen Romans. Can you imagine his amazement to hear the great teacher, the holy Son of God, saying to him, ‘Follow me’?

Matthew left all, rose up, and followed him (28). He gave up a comfortable living to become attached to the Lord Jesus. He was not a secret believer but gave a great feast to which he invited many other tax collectors where he introduced them to his Saviour (29). Are you glad to own Jesus as your Lord before your friends and colleagues at work? Do you earnestly desire and pray for their salvation?

No one is beyond the reach of God’s mercy. Christianity is for sinners, but the churlish, self-righteous Pharisees did not recognise their own spiritual need. Jesus told them, ‘I have not come to call the righteous, but sinners, to repentance’ (30–32). He does not call the righteous because there are no righteous people (Romans 3:10). We are all sinners and he calls us to repentance. How is it with you?

Why do the disciples of John fast ... but yours eat and drink?

Some of the disciples of John the Baptist saw the happiness and feasting at the house of Matthew but were puzzled that the disciples of Jesus did not fast. They asked Jesus, ‘Why do the disciples of John fast often and make prayers, and likewise those of the Pharisees, but yours eat and drink?’ (33). He replied that fasting was inappropriate for his disciples, comparing his presence on earth with a wedding feast (a Jewish wedding in Bible times was a very festive time). The couple who were married did not go away for a honeymoon but stayed at home. An open house was kept and the bridegroom and his bride were treated like royalty as their closest friends shared all the joy and feasting of the week. These close friends were called ‘the children of the bridechamber’ (translated here as ‘the friends of the bridegroom’).

The Lord Jesus was comparing himself to the bridegroom and his disciples to the bridegroom’s friends. How could they fast and mourn? They were with the almighty Son of God. They were seeing corrupt tax officials like Matthew coming to faith in Christ and their lives completely transformed. There was daily rejoicing over sinners repenting. The Lord Jesus then spoke of the time that he would be taken away: ‘But the days will come when the bridegroom will be taken away from them; then they will fast in those days’ (35). William Hendriksen points out that this was a prediction of his death on the cross.

Jesus said that a new cloth patch would soon pull away from an old garment as it shrank in the wash. New wine would burst an old wineskin as it fermented because the old wineskin could not stretch like a new one (36–39). When a person is saved by grace, the old life is not patched up with good works. He is a new creation in Christ and the old things have passed away (2 Corinthians 5:17). The garments of the old life are replaced with the garments of salvation (Isaiah 61:10). The new wine of salvation must be poured into the new strong wineskins of joyful thanksgiving and sacrificial service which glorifies God.

He sought to see him

Herod the Great, the tyrant who had sought to kill the infant Jesus, had ten wives. He bequeathed his kingdom to three of his sons. Herod Antipas ruled over Galilee and Perea. Another son, Philip, ruled over the north-eastern territories of the kingdom, and Archelaus over Judea and Samaria. Archelaus was deposed by the Romans who then imposed direct rule over Judea and Samaria in AD 6 (Pontius Pilate became governor of these territories in AD 26).

John the Baptist had fearlessly denounced Herod Antipas for his adultery with Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip. Herod had imprisoned John but was fascinated by the message of the bold preacher and heard him gladly (Mark 6:17–29). He did not repent of his sin however, and later he had John beheaded. Herod could not silence his own conscience even though he had silenced John. When he heard about Jesus, he was perplexed because some claimed that John had risen from the dead. Others were saying that Jesus was Elijah or one of the old prophets who had risen again (7–8). We read that Herod sought to see him but when the opportunity came, the Lord Jesus had nothing to say to him (23:8–9). He had squandered his opportunities to repent. It is not enough to hear God’s word or to have an interest in religion. We must repent of our sin, turn to the Lord and trust in him!

When the disciples returned from their preaching mission, they gave Jesus an account of all that they had done (10). At this time Jesus heard the dreadful news of the murder of John the Baptist (Matthew 14:12–13). They needed rest and Jesus took them and went aside privately into a deserted place belonging to the city called Bethsaida (10). J.C. Ryle comments, ‘Those who do public work for the souls of others, must be careful to make time for being alone with God. The lesson is one which many Christians would do well to remember. Occasional retirement, self-enquiry, meditation, and secret communion with God, are absolutely essential to spiritual health. The man who neglects them is in great danger of a fall’ (Page 297).

He sent them to preach

The ministry of the Lord Jesus in Galilee was soon to finish (see verse 51) and he gave the disciples power and authority over all demons, and to cure diseases. He sent them to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick (1–2; cp. Mark 6:7). They were to have a simple lifestyle and not take money or food with them but look to traditional eastern hospitality for their provision (3–4). They did not lack anything during this preaching tour, though for later missions after the resurrection of Christ they were told to take money with them (22:35–36).

They went preaching the gospel ... everywhere (6). J.C. Ryle comments, ‘The importance of preaching, as a means of grace, might easily be gathered from this passage, even if it stood alone. But it is but one instance, among many, of the high value which the Bible everywhere sets upon preaching. It is, in fact, God’s chosen instrument for doing good to souls. By it sinners are converted, inquirers led on, and saints built up. A preaching ministry is absolutely essential to the health and prosperity of a visible church. The pulpit is the place where the chief victories of the gospel have always been won, and no church has ever done much for the advancement of true religion in which the pulpit has been neglected’ (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, page 292).

The Lord Jesus told his disciples that when a house or city rejected them and their message, they should shake off the dust from their feet (5). This refers to the Jewish custom of shaking the dust from their sandals and clothes before re-entering the Holy Land after passing through Gentile territory; this was to avoid ceremonial uncleanness. By shaking the dust from their feet, the disciples were giving a symbolic warning that God would surely punish those Jews who rejected the gospel. They were unclean and were no better than Gentiles (cp. Acts 13:49–51). Are you rejecting Christ? Beware!

The Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath

The scribes and Pharisees made Sabbath-keeping a great burden and misery by adding many rules and regulations to the command of Scripture. They were very quick to criticise the disciples for plucking ears of corn on the Sabbath in order to feed themselves (1–2). The Lord Jesus came to the defence of his disciples and reminded their accusers that David had once done an unlawful thing by eating the showbread (3–4; cp. 1 Samuel 21:1–6).

The Lord Jesus taught that human need must be met on the Sabbath just as it is on any other day (14:1–6). The Sabbath was made for man (Mark 2:27), not to be a burden but a blessing. Jesus reminded them, ‘The Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath’ (5).

When Jesus went into the synagogue on another Sabbath, the scribes and Pharisees watched him closely. They wondered whether he would heal the man with a withered hand so that they could accuse him of Sabbath-breaking (6–7). Jesus knew their thoughts and challenged them to say whether it was lawful or not to heal and to do good on the Sabbath, and he then healed the man (8–10). The wicked scribes and Pharisees had no compassion for the handicapped man and were filled with rage when Jesus healed him. They were very rigid in their interpretation of the law and yet they plotted to do evil to the Lord Jesus on the Sabbath (11)!

‘The Son of Man is also Lord of the Sabbath’ (5). Is Jesus the Lord of your Sabbaths? If he is, the Lord’s Day should be the highlight of your week. You are able to rest from your daily work to be free to worship God with his people, to do good and to show compassion to those in need.

He called his disciples to him; and from them he chose twelve

Though multitudes were continuing to hear Jesus, opposition to him was increasing (11,17). After spending a night in prayer, he called his disciples to him; and from them he chose twelve whom he also named apostles (12–13). He had many disciples but these men were to be his constant companions, to be prepared for the task of preaching the gospel far and wide after his death and resurrection. They were distinguished from other disciples in being named as apostles (those who have been sent out or commissioned). We are not apostles but we are all called to be disciples (cp. Acts 9:19,36; 11:26). A disciple puts into practice the teachings of Christ (Matthew 28:19–20). Hendriksen comments, ‘A disciple is a pupil, a learner. He is, however, more than a “bookworm”, or even than a “student”. Rather, he is an adherent, a follower. Between him and his Master there exists — at least should exist — a close personal fellowship’ (COMMENTARY ON LUKE, page 327). Is it obvious to those who know you that you are a disciple of Christ?

Why did the Lord Jesus choose Judas Iscariot to be a disciple? He knows all things and he knew that Judas was a thief (John 12:4–6) and the one who would betray him. The Bible does not answer this question. Judas preached the gospel and healed the sick (Matthew 10:1–4) but he was not a true believer. It is a sombre fact that even in the best of churches there may be those who appear to belong to the Lord, but who deceive themselves and others (cp. Matthew 7:21–23). We cannot deceive God. Let us examine our own hearts before the Lord (see 2 Corinthians 13:5).

Vast crowds came to hear the Lord Jesus and to be healed of their diseases, including those tormented by evil spirits (16–19). Notice that he healed them all (19). How different this is from today’s charismatic evangelists who make great claims. Their healing miracles are so thin on the ground that they make Christ appear to be a failure. Do not pay attention to them for their teaching regarding healing is far from biblical.

Do not be afraid; only believe

The Gadarene people may not have wanted the Lord Jesus, but he was welcomed by a multitude when he returned to Galilee. Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue, came to Jesus begging him to come to his house to heal his dying daughter (40–42).

While Jesus was going to the house of Jairus, he was interrupted by a woman who was desperate to reach him for healing. This poor woman had suffered twelve years of misery through continuous haemorrhages and had spent all that she had in search of a cure but without success (43). Her condition would have rendered her ceremonially unclean. Anyone touching someone in her condition would also be unclean (Leviticus 15:19–27). This probably explains why she did not want the Lord Jesus to know that she had touched his garment (47). He knew all about her; many people had touched Jesus as they crowded upon him but her touch was one of faith. She expected to be healed and the Lord Jesus responded to her faith by healing her and reassuring her (45,48).

The delay caused by the woman’s healing must have sorely tried the faith of Jairus. While Jesus was still speaking to the woman, Jairus heard the news that he had dreaded – his daughter had died. In his sudden grief and sorrow, Jairus heard the wonderful words of Jesus, ‘Do not be afraid; only believe, and she will be made well’ (50). The Lord Jesus wanted Jairus to trust him, even in this darkest hour.

In Bible times professional mourners were called in when someone died. They were experts in the art of weeping and wailing, moaning and groaning (cp. Jeremiah 9:17–18). Their performance turned to scornful laughter when Jesus told them that the girl was not dead but sleeping. He only permitted Jairus and his wife, Peter, James and John to go into the house. Her grieving parents were astonished when they saw the Lord Jesus raise their daughter from the dead (51–56). Are you distraught and fearful? Oh, trust in our precious Saviour who says, ‘Do not be afraid; only believe.’

Tell what great things God has done for you

The demons left the man at the command of Jesus and entered a herd of pigs which ran over the cliffs to perish in the sea. The terrified swineherds fled to the city to tell their story. The people of the city went to see what had happened and were afraid when they saw the man who had been previously possessed sitting at the feet of Jesus, clothed and in his right mind (32–35). We read of two requests in verses 37 and 38 which show two contrasting attitudes towards the Lord Jesus:

- The people of the region did not welcome Jesus nor did they bring their sick for healing, but asked him to depart from them (37). He granted their request and he got into the boat and returned. Are you shocked by the attitude of those people? The demons knew that they had no hope of forgiveness. Their doom was already set; they knew that everlasting torment awaited them. The people of the city could have heard a message of glorious hope. They had no need to fear the Lord Jesus if only they had embraced him and asked him to be their Saviour. Many people say that they are too busy to think about God or the Christian message. They are more concerned for their hobbies and pleasure than for the eternal well-being of their soul. They scoff when told of coming judgment. It is tragic that men and women, blinded by Satan, enslaved in sin (and loving it) refuse God's offer of mercy. Jesus once said to others who had rejected him, 'You are not willing to come to me that you may have life' (John 5:40). Are you uncomfortable with Jesus, or do you welcome him?
- The man who had been delivered from the demons was different however. He begged the Lord Jesus that he might remain with him but he was to be more useful at home, witnessing to his family, friends and neighbours (38). Jesus said to him, 'Tell what great things God has done for you.' He needed no persuasion but went proclaiming what great things Jesus had done for him (39). Notice that Jesus is God, for what God had done for the man is linked with what Jesus had done for him. When did you last tell someone what the Lord Jesus has done for you?

Your reward is great in heaven

Some commentators (eg. Hendriksen) believe that the remaining verses of this chapter are a shorter report of the Sermon on the Mount (see Matthew chapters 5 to 7). Others (eg. Ryle) are convinced that this is an entirely different sermon. In these verses there are four blessings contrasted by four woes. You may wonder how poverty, hunger, sorrow and persecution, the very things that men seek to avoid, can be a blessing. They are not a blessing for the ungodly but when suffered by the Christian for the Son of Man's sake, they lead to great blessing and Jesus promises, 'Your reward is great in heaven' (22–23). How can the things which most men struggle to obtain – riches, abundance of food, pleasure and popularity – be a curse? They are a curse if we refuse to follow Christ for fear of losing them.

Let Bishop J.C. Ryle challenge us: 'The state of life which our Lord blesses, the world cordially dislikes. The people to whom our Lord says, "Woe unto you" are the very people whom the world admires, praises, and imitates. This is an awful fact. It ought to raise within us great searching of heart. Let us leave the whole passage with honest self-inquiry and self-examination. Let us ask ourselves what we think of the wonderful declarations that it contains. Can we subscribe to what our Lord says? Are we of one mind with him? Do we really believe that poverty and persecution, endured for Christ's sake, are positive blessings? Do we really believe that riches and worldly enjoyment, and popularity among men, when sought for more than salvation, or preferred in the least to the praise of God, are a positive curse? Do we really think that the favour of Christ with trouble and the world's ill word, is better worth having than money, and merriment, and a good name among men, without Christ? These are most serious questions, and deserve a most serious answer. The passage before us is eminently one which tests the reality of our Christianity' (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, pages 179–180).

Love your enemies

The scribes and Pharisees had distorted God's command, 'You shall love your neighbour' (Leviticus 19:18) to mean that we should hate our enemies. The Bible teaches no such thing. The Jews had narrowed down the meaning of neighbour to those whom they loved (cp. 10:28–37). Jesus cut right across such thinking when he said, 'Love your enemies' (27). This is one of the most difficult commands to keep especially when it is professing Christians who hate us or harm us. Satan is spoiling their lives and we must overcome their evil with good (Romans 12:20–21). If they are not believers, remember that they are enslaved by Satan, lost and bound for hell. Love has won many a hostile sinner to Christ. Our attitude to others must not be determined by what they are or what they do to us.

How should we show our love to our enemies? We must do good to those who hate us, bless those who curse us, pray for those who persecute us (27–28). To be slapped on the cheek was a great insult which could be punished by a very heavy fine. Jesus is not telling us to invite further suffering but to respond to insults by being gracious (29). In New Testament times a court was not able to deprive a person of his cloak as payment for a fine (the cloak was also used as a blanket at night). Jesus said that we should not insist on our rights: 'Do not withhold your tunic either' (29). There is much talk today of standing on our rights but Jesus calls us to self-denial when we are wronged. Did you turn the other cheek the last time you were wronged?

Verse 31 sets out 'the golden rule': 'And just as you want men to do to you, you also do to them likewise.' If we only love those who love us, we are no different to the ungodly (32–33). We must not give to obtain but be like our heavenly Father who shows his goodness, kindness and mercy every day, even to his enemies ('the unthankful and the evil'; 34–36). If we take seriously 'the golden rule' and live by it, God will be glorified, and we will know much blessing in our lives.

What have I to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God?

The Gadarenes on the east of the Sea of Galilee had a predominantly Gentile population (cp. Galilee of the Gentiles– Matthew 4:15). This explains a herd of many swine (32) as these were 'unclean' animals which would not have been kept by Jews. When Jesus and his disciples left the boat they were met by a demon-possessed man. This poor wretch lived among the tombs and ran around wild, naked, shrieking and cutting himself with stones. He had superhuman strength through demonic power and chains could not hold him (26–29; cp. Mark 5:5). The encounter of Jesus with the demons teaches us three vital truths:

- That Jesus is God. The disciples had asked a short time earlier, 'Who can this be? For he commands even the winds and water, and they obey him!' (25). The man fell down before the Lord Jesus and the demon speaking for the evil spirits within the man supplied the answer. 'What have I to do with you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God?' (28). This title of Jesus shows that he is God. The Jews recognised that this title was one of deity and their religious leaders hated the Lord Jesus for calling God his Father (John 5:18).
- That demons are subject to the Lord Jesus. The demons begged Jesus not to torment them (28). The lovely presence of Jesus was a source of torment to these foul, unclean spirits. They have a king and master, Satan, and they gladly serve the evil tyrant, but when confronted with Jesus, they are in the presence of One who is greater than the devil. They had to answer to Jesus and knew that they could only go where he permitted (30–32).
- That demons believed in God's judgment and in the eternal punishment of the wicked. They asked Jesus not to send them into the abyss but to allow them to enter the herd of pigs (31–32). The abyss is the dreadful place prepared for the devil and his angels to which the lost will also be banished (Matthew 25:41; Revelation 20:10). Christians have no need to dread the day of judgment or condemnation (Romans 8:1). Are you a real Christian?

Where is your faith?

The Lord Jesus fell asleep as he and the disciples sailed across the Sea of Galilee. J.C. Ryle comments, ‘To be weary of working for God is sinful, but to be wearied and worn in doing God’s work is no sin at all. Jesus himself was weary, and Jesus slept’ (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, page 262).

The Sea (lake) of Galilee is about thirteen miles long and up to seven miles wide. It lies about seven hundred feet below the level of the Mediterranean. When cool currents of air sweep down from the surrounding hills, they collide with the warm air above the sea, whipping up fierce winds. A fierce storm arose which threatened to capsize their boat. Though some of the disciples were experienced fishermen, they were terrified and roused their sleeping Master (23–24). He rebuked the storm and there was a calm. The Lord Jesus asked the disciples, ‘Where is your faith?’ They had already seen him perform astounding miracles and they had experienced his care for them; how could they imagine that he would fail them now? He is not just a man, he is almighty God. The disciples’ fear of the storm turned to a fear inspired by awe – ‘Who can this be? For he commands even the winds and water, and they obey him!’ (25).

If we know the Lord, we have experienced his goodness to us and his power in our lives. We are often like the disciples, however, and we soon forget these things when the storms and trials of the Christian life disturb us. Is the Lord saying to you, ‘Where is your faith?’

*God moves in a mysterious way
His wonders to perform;
He plants his footsteps in the sea,
And rides upon the storm.*

*Judge not the Lord by feeble sense,
But trust him for his grace;
Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.*

(William Cowper)

Judge not, and you shall not be judged

One of the most misunderstood verses in the Bible is Judge not, and you shall not be judged (37). It has been quoted as an excuse to turn a blind eye to wickedness or to avoid church discipline but we must not tolerate wickedness or false teaching (43–45; cp. Matthew 7:15–20). We must use our judgment and test the spirits (1 John 4:1), comparing what we are taught with the teaching of Scripture. It does not mean that we are not to think or to have an opinion. The apostle Paul reminded the Corinthian church, ‘He who is spiritual judges all things’ (1 Corinthians 2:15). We must support church discipline against those who are sexually immoral (1 Corinthians chapter 5) and we must lovingly seek their restoration (Galatians 6:1).

What then is the meaning of verse 37? It warns against having a critical and a censorious spirit and tells us that we must be prepared to forgive those who have wronged us. God will treat us as we treat others (38). We must not become ‘Christian Pharisees’. It is very easy to find fault with other believers especially when they are weak in those things where we imagine ourselves to be strong. The Lord Jesus uses a humorous illustration – the hypocrite sees a speck of dirt in his brother’s eye and wants to remove it, while having a plank of wood in his own eye (41–42).

No Christian is perfect. We all have our faults and some stick out in our lives like great planks. We must not be irritating busybodies, putting everyone else right. We have enough to do in watching our own lives, and repenting of our own sins. Jesus said, ‘A good tree does not bear bad fruit, nor does a bad tree bear good fruit. For every tree is known by its own fruit’ (43–44). The fruit of our lips shows what kind of fruit we are bearing (45). If we truly love the Lord and belong to him our words will be wholesome and kind. We must be kind to one another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, just as God in Christ also forgave us (Ephesians 4:32).

Whoever comes to me, and hears my sayings, and does them

The parable of the two builders challenges us to consider the kind of foundation on which we are building our lives. The houses in the parable may have been constructed with the same materials and been similar in appearance, but their foundations were different. The floods came and the storms battered the houses. The house built on earth without a foundation collapsed, but the house with deep foundations, built on the rock, stood firm.

What is the point of this parable? The Lord Jesus is warning us that if we call him our Lord but do not obey him, the outcome will prove disastrous for us. It is not good enough to say that we believe the Bible from cover to cover, or to listen to good preaching, unless we obey his word. There is an easy type of Christianity which makes no demands for commitment to a life of discipleship though it pays lip service to the teaching of Scripture. It attracts many but it leads to hell and not to heaven. Jesus said, ‘Why do you call me “Lord, Lord”, and do not do the things which I say?’ (46; cp. James 1:22). If our Christianity is real, it will show in our lives by our obedience to the word of God.

There are many people who profess faith in Christ. They attend church regularly, hear God’s word, and they read the Bible. They appear to be Christians but they do not take God’s word seriously nor do they obey it! In John Bunyan’s great classic, THE PILGRIM’S PROGRESS, we meet a character named Talkative. ‘He talketh of prayer, of repentance, of faith, and of the new birth; but he knows but only to talk of them.’

Jesus said, ‘Whoever comes to me, and hears my sayings, and does them ... is like a man building a house, who dug deep and laid the foundation on the rock’ (47). If we do not obey the teaching of the Lord Jesus, our religion will not stand the test in difficult times. We will be like the foolish man who built on the wrong foundation and lost everything when the storms came. ‘And the ruin of that house was great.’ He heard the word but did nothing (49). Are you building your life on the solid foundation of love and obedience to Christ?

Therefore take heed how you hear

In his next parable (16–18), the Lord Jesus said that no one lights a lamp to cover it up or to hide it. Spiritual knowledge and understanding bring great responsibility. Our Christianity must be practised and seen in our lives; it must not be hidden from those who are in darkness and lack spiritual light (16–17; cp. Matthew 5:14–16). Jesus tells us to take heed how we hear the word of God (18). J.C. Ryle reminds us of three rules for hearing God’s word (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, Pages 258):

- We must hear with faith, believing implicitly that every word of God is true (cp. Hebrews 4:2).
- We must hear with reverence, remembering constantly that the Bible is the word of God (cp. 1 Thessalonians 2:13).
- We must hear with prayer, seeking God’s blessing on the word before and after we read it or hear it preached.

If we neglect what God gives to us, we will lose it, but when we eagerly hear the word with a determination to obey it, God will bless us and add to us (18). Therefore take heed how you hear (18). How do you hear the word of God?

Some people who are ignorant of Scripture believe that Mary was a perpetual virgin. Her children are mentioned here and are named elsewhere (Matthew 13:55–56). Why did the mother and brothers of Jesus come to see him? It may be that they were concerned for him and wanted to protect him from those who said, ‘He is out of his mind’ (Mark 3:21,31). Jesus indicated that those who hear the word of God and do it are his mother and his brothers (19–21). He was not despising Mary, but teaching that a spiritual relationship to him is far more important than our natural relationships. Obedience to God’s word is a good indication that we belong to him. My mother and my brothers are these who hear the word of God and do it (21).

Having heard the word with a noble and good heart

Have you known people who profess Christ to be their Saviour and show real joy? They appear to be very keen and become involved in many of the activities of their local church. They begin to share their faith with others, then suddenly they go away from the church and their Christian friends. What has happened to them? The word of God has fallen on rock. The ones on the rock are those who, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and these have no root, who believe for a while and in the time of temptation (testing) fall away (6,13).

They appear to have spiritual life but there is no depth and their profession of faith soon evaporates when trouble comes (13). They thought that following Christ would banish trouble from their lives. They expected happiness and peace which would not be spoiled by trials. They never knew what it was to deny themselves and to take up their cross daily and to follow Christ. They did not realise that we are called to suffer for the Lord (cp. 9:23–24; Philippians 1:29–30). Their faith was shallow. The word fell on rock.

Thorny ground hearers have a worldly heart that chokes the word of God so that it becomes unfruitful (7, 14). I grieve over those who once were keen, but who are now cold and indifferent to Christ. Some who were fellow-pastors are now far away from the Lord and in the world, some falling into grievous sin. They are choked with cares, riches, and the pleasures of life. Are they just backslidden? If they are backslidden, they will surely repent and return to the Lord. If they die without repentance, they are apostate – never truly saved – lost for ever. How solemn the warning of this parable!

Some who hear the word of God give us much joy and encouragement. They are those who, having heard the word with a noble and good heart, keep it and bear fruit with patience (8,15). They bear fruit in the most testing conditions because the word has fallen on good ground.

What kind of ground does your heart provide for the word of God?

He who has ears to hear, let him hear! (8).

Great faith

When Jesus came to Capernaum, he was met with a desperate and urgent request from a Roman centurion (an officer who commanded one hundred soldiers). The centurion in today's reading was different from most Romans – he was loved and highly regarded by the Jews for his benevolence towards them (1–5; Cornelius was another highly regarded centurion, Acts 10:1–2). He was desperate to obtain help for his servant (Greek = 'slave') who was dying, and when he heard about Jesus he sent elders of the Jews to him, pleading with him to come and heal his servant (3). Though the man was an army officer, he was very humble. The Jews commended him to Jesus as one worthy to have his request granted. He did not have such a high opinion of himself. He said, however, in his message to the Lord Jesus, 'I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof' (4–6).

The centurion was not only humble but also had great faith. His message was, 'Say the word, and my servant will be healed' (7). As a man under the authority of the emperor, his word was obeyed; he recognised that Jesus was under a greater authority (of God the Father) and that he had authority to heal sickness at a word. He had no doubt that his servant would be healed at the command of Jesus (8). Jesus marvelled at him and said to the crowd, 'I have not found such great faith, not even in Israel!' (9). The only other occasion where we read that Jesus marvelled is on account of the unbelief of the people of Nazareth (Mark 6:6). When the messengers arrived back at the centurion's house, they found that the servant had recovered.

Faith is more than saying, 'I believe'. It is taking God at his word and trusting him to do what he says he will do. Now faith is the assurance of things hoped for, the conviction of things not seen (Hebrews 11:1, English Standard Version). Great faith and great humility go together. Are they evident in your life?

When the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her

The day after he had healed the centurion's servant, Jesus went to Nain, some twenty-five miles south-west of Capernaum. A large crowd was following him by the time he reached the city where they were met by another large crowd. This crowd was following a weeping widow in a funeral procession.

The widow had lost her only son and when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her (13). Jesus does not change. Our trials, troubles and tears do not go unnoticed. He is still full of compassion for us; the Christian is never alone in suffering (Hebrews 4:15). We have a wonderful Saviour and Friend.

The Lord Jesus told the widow not to weep and he touched the open coffin as the procession halted. He said to the lifeless body, Young man, I say to you, arise (14). Jesus did not need to pray to God for the raising of the dead because he is God (the title, Lord in verse 13 also indicates his deity). He has power over sickness, over demons and over death. The young man sat up and the Lord Jesus presented him to his mother. She discovered the greatness and kindness of our precious Saviour on that memorable day.

The crowds were awe-struck and they glorified God, acknowledging Jesus as a great prophet, saying, God has visited his people (15–16). When God visits us, hopelessness and despair give way to hope and joy. When he comes to us, things are never the same again. Do you really know the Lord Jesus in your life and experience?

Then the devil comes and takes away the word out of their hearts

A great multitude came to hear the Lord Jesus and he spoke to them by a parable (4). Parables have been described as ‘earthly stories with a heavenly meaning’. John Blanchard points out that ‘those who treat parables as no more than interesting stories will end up with nothing but interesting stories!’ (LOOK THROUGH LUKE – published by Henry Walter). We may think that the Lord Jesus used parables to make his message clearer to his hearers. This was not so. Parables conceal the mysteries of the kingdom of God which need to be explained. Spiritual truths are mysteries which cannot be known unless God gives us the gift of understanding (9–10). If God is opening our eyes to understand his word when we read it or hear it preached, we should be humbled and full of gratitude to him.

In the parable of the sower the crucial factor is not the seed, but the ground in which the seed is sown. In this parable the seed is the word of God (11). The different kinds of ground on which the seed falls represent the human heart. In the work of the gospel we experience disappointments as well as encouragements. This parable helps us to understand why this is so.

Have you ever invited someone to come to an evangelistic service? They come and hear the word of God which is powerfully and convincingly preached. You feel that your friend must be convinced, but they turn out to be quite unmoved. They then show no further interest in the gospel and you are very disappointed. What is the explanation? They are those by the wayside. They hear the word of God, then the devil comes and takes away the word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved (5,12).

The devil hates the word of God. He not only snatches away the word of God from the hearts of many sinners, but also from many Christians. If you are not profiting from the word of God, is it because the word of God is not faithfully and persuasively preached in your church? Or is it because of the state of your heart?

Who provided for him from their substance

The Lord Jesus had a very busy and exhausting ministry, preaching and bringing the good news of the kingdom of God to every city and village of Galilee (1). He was accompanied by the twelve disciples and certain women who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities ... and many others who provided for him from their substance. One of these women was Mary Magdalene out of whom had come seven demons (2). The story that Mary had been a prostitute is without any foundation and there is no valid reason for linking her with the sinful woman we read about in chapter 7.

Mary and the other women had been in the grip of evil spirits but had been set free by the Lord Jesus. Some of them were undoubtedly wealthy and they were so profoundly grateful to him that they provided for him from their substance (3). Jesus could have miraculously provided food or money to support himself and the disciples (cp. 9:10–17; Matthew 17:27) but he chose to use human means for this purpose. We enjoy great joy and blessing when we give generously to the Lord and if he did not use human means for the support of the work of God's kingdom, we would be denied this blessing.

These women gladly provided for him from their own money and faithfully followed him. They did not deny him nor desert him when he was arrested and crucified like most of the disciples of Christ, but were with him to the end (23:55–56; Mark 15:40–41). It was Mary Magdalene to whom the risen Lord first appeared (Mark 16:9).

You may wonder how you can provide for the Lord from your substance, especially if your resources are limited. Are you concerned for fellow-believers in their need? Do you have compassion on them? Remember the words of Jesus, 'Inasmuch as you did it to one of the least of these my brethren, you did it to me' (Matthew 25:40).

Blessed is he who is not offended because of me

There is all the difference in the world between the doubts that beset a troubled believer and the cynical, stubborn doubt of those with closed minds who refuse to listen to the word of God. The Pharisees and lawyers (experts in the Jewish religion) were among the cynical doubters who rejected the word of God (30).

John the Baptist had condemned Herod Antipas for his adultery and was thrown into prison (3:19–20; cp. Mark 6:17–18). He then began to have doubts even though he had heard about the wonderful works of Jesus. He sent two of his disciples to Jesus to ask, 'Are you the Coming One, or do we look for another?' (18–20). John had affirmed the greatness of the Lord Jesus and had heard the voice from heaven saying, 'You are my beloved Son; in you I am well pleased' (3:16,22). John's doubt was not the doubt of a scoffer but of a godly man puzzled at God's ways with him. Why had the Lord allowed his ministry to be cut short, leaving him to languish in prison, if Jesus were indeed the Messiah he had proclaimed? He may also have expected Jesus to purge the nation of its wickedness and hypocrisy (cp. 3:7–9).

John's two disciples then saw for themselves the mighty power of Christ over sickness and demons. He told them to tell John about the things that they had heard and seen (21–22). He said to them, 'Blessed is he who is not offended because of me' (23). Jesus was very kind and tender in his assessment of his disheartened servant. John was greater than all the Old Testament prophets and yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he (24–28). This does not mean that John was not a saved man, but that the least in the kingdom were more privileged because they were seeing the wonderful effects of the Messiah's ministry (cp. 10:23–24). Are you perplexed by dark doubts or despair because of some perplexing trial? Do not be offended with the Lord for his dealings with you. He promises, 'Blessed is he who is not offended because of me.' You may not be able to trace the ways of God, but do trust him. He is wise and kind and he will never fail you.

A friend of tax collectors and sinners

Those who responded to John's message of repentance and were baptised, justified God (29). This means that they believed God's word and vindicated his righteous requirements by submitting to John's baptism. The scribes and Pharisees rejected the counsel of God by refusing to be baptised by John (30). Jesus compared his generation to children playing in the market places. One group wanted to play weddings and some, pretending to be flute players, obliged with merry music but there was no dancing because others wanted to play funerals. The 'flute players' then pretended to be mourners wailing their laments, but that did not suit those who wanted to play weddings. Jesus likened this childish behaviour to the petty attitude of those who opposed both John the Baptist and himself. They opposed John because his ministry was too severe and they condemned Jesus because he attended feasts. They falsely accused him of being a glutton and a drunkard.

J.C. Ryle comments, 'The plain truth is that the natural heart of man hates God. The carnal mind is enmity against God. It dislikes his law, his gospel, and his people. It will always find some excuse for not believing and obeying. The doctrine of repentance is too strict for it! The doctrine of faith and grace is too easy for it! John the Baptist goes too much out of the world! Jesus Christ goes too much into the world! And so the heart of man excuses itself for sitting still in its sins. — All this must not surprise us' (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 1, Pages 229–230).

Jesus befriended those considered the dregs of society when they turned from their sin to follow him. He was called 'a friend of tax collectors and sinners' (31–34). The enemies of Jesus implied that Jesus was condoning sin, but that was not true. He offers forgiveness to the worst of sinners if they will repent and trust in him (cp. 1 Timothy 1:15). The wisdom of John the Baptist and Jesus was justified by the changed lives of those who followed them (35). Do you know the Lord Jesus as your friend?

But to whom little is forgiven, the same loves little

Though the Pharisees were generally hostile to Jesus, some did invite him to eat with them (36; 11:37). Some were glad of an opportunity to watch him closely in the hope of finding fault with him (cp. 14:1). While Jesus was at the home of Simon the Pharisee, a woman described as a sinner because of her shameful lifestyle came into the house and lavished her affection on him. Simon was immediately critical of Jesus, thinking to himself, that if Jesus had been a prophet, he would have known that this woman was a sinner and not have allowed her to touch him (37–39). Jesus knew what he was thinking and told him a parable of two debtors. One owed five hundred denarii (about eighteen months' wages), the other fifty (almost two months' wages) but their creditor freely forgave them. Jesus asked Simon which of the debtors would have the greater love for their creditor. He answered, 'I suppose the one to whom he forgave more' (43).

Jesus then applied the parable to Simon who had not extended to him the customary courtesy given to guests – provision of water to wash one's feet, the welcome kiss (cp. Romans 16:16) or oil to rub into his sun-dried skin. By contrast, the sinful woman had been lavish in showing her affection for him because she had been forgiven much. Jesus reminded the Pharisee, 'But to whom little is forgiven, the same loves little' (47). He then turned to the woman and said to her, 'Your sins are forgiven ... your faith has saved you, go in peace' (48–50).

The Pharisees recognised that by offering forgiveness of sins, Jesus was claiming to be God (49). They did not have true faith but trusted in their own supposed goodness to save them (cp. 18:9). They did not consider themselves to be in need of forgiveness. It is only when we see ourselves as guilty, lost and helpless sinners, that we will cast ourselves on Christ for mercy (cp. 18:13). When we understand that we have been forgiven much, we will love much. Do others know that you love the Lord? Is it seen in your lifestyle, in your work for God, in your enthusiasm to be at the prayer-meeting, in the giving of your time and money to the Lord's work?
