Gospel of Luke chapters 15 to 23

His father saw him and had compassion

True repentance leads to action. ‘When he came to himself’ (17), the wayward son reasoned that his father’s servants were far better off than himself and he determined to return to his father, confessing his sin and worthlessness, and begging to be taken on as a servant. The son who had so selfishly said, ‘Give me’ now says, ‘Make me’ (12,19).

Repentance is a change of mind or attitude. This is seen in the young man’s attitude recorded in verses 18 and 19. The self-assertion and selfishness is gone. He is humbled. He confesses that his rebellion was sin against God and against his father. He had not honoured his father and mother when he rebelled against them. He owes God and his father everything. He has to cast himself on the mercy of his father.

The necessity of repentance is often lacking in the preaching and teaching of many churches but it is a vital part of gospel preaching found in the preaching of John the Baptist and the Lord Jesus (Mark 1:4,14; cp. Luke 24:46–49). Peter preached repentance in his sermon on the Day of Pentecost and Paul had the same message: ‘God commands all men everywhere to repent’ (Acts 2:38; 17 30). There can be no forgiveness without repentance.

The father saw his returning son and ran to greet him. He had compassion on him, embraced him and kissed him. As the son confessed his sin, the father called for the servants to clothe him and to prepare a welcome feast (20–24). He broke the code of honour expected by the Pharisees.

The parable illustrates the amazing love and grace of God to repentant sinners. Grace is favour we do not deserve. God not only freely forgives sinners, but heaps blessings upon them when they come to him, just as the lost son received far more than he deserved.

Who is a pardoning God like thee?

Or who has grace so rich and free? (Samuel Davies)

It was right that we should make merry and be glad

The elder brother was in the field when his brother returned and by the time he came in from his work, the party was in progress. When he asked a servant what was happening, he was told, ‘Your brother has come’ (25–27). He was very angry when he heard that the merrymaking was for his worthless younger brother and he was vehement in expressing his feelings to his father. His resentment was so great, that he referred to his brother as ‘this son of yours’ when speaking to his father, who said in reply, ‘Your brother’ (30). The elder brother was just like the scribes and Pharisees who were proud, hard and unforgiving. He was full of his own good works and he despised the wretched sinner (29–30). Such an attitude with its pride, envy and peevishness has no place in the life of a Christian.

If God is willing to forgive repentant sinners, we must also be prepared to forgive those who have wronged us. If we nurse grudges and bitterness, our Christian life and witness will be severely damaged. The father assured the elder brother of his love for him, but pointed out, ‘It was right that we should make merry and be glad, for your brother was dead and is alive again, and was lost and is found’ (32). Notice that these are words which describe our state before and after conversion – ‘dead and alive – lost and found’.

Let us pray for the conversion of many sinners and seek to win them to Christ. There is no joy like that of seeing the lost brought to faith in Christ and seeing lives transformed through the grace of God! If you are not a Christian and wonder whether or not God will forgive you and accept you, take heart! Come to the Lord Jesus, trust in him and repent of your sin. He will not turn you away.

*How helpless and hopeless we sinners had been
If he never had loved us till cleansed from our sin!
Unto him who hath loved us and washed us from sin,
Unto him be the glory for ever! Amen.*

(Arthur T. Pierson)

No servant can serve two masters

There are two parables involving rich men in this chapter. In the first (1–8), a rich man discovered that his steward (business manager) was squandering his goods. The steward knew that he would lose his job and he summoned every one of his master’s debtors and reduced their debt. This shrewd move put his master’s debtors into his debt and he knew that they would then help him when he was out of work and destitute. He was commended for his shrewdness but not for his dishonesty (8).

This parable teaches us that our lives and possessions are a stewardship from God. The dishonest steward had an eye to the future and so should we. We must use our earthly possessions (‘mammon’ – 9) in such a way that we will be received into everlasting habitations (heaven) at the end of our lives when our wealth is of no use to us. Money used to support the work of God will reap eternal dividends. Do we take seriously the teaching of the Lord Jesus concerning the stewardship of our possessions? If we are not faithful with our money, the Lord will not entrust us with spiritual riches (10). We must remember that we too must give an account on the day of judgment (Romans 14:10,12; 2 Corinthians 5:9–11).

Many Christians fail to be generous in their giving to the Lord’s work because they love money. We must never let money be our master. Jesus said, ‘No servant can serve two masters ... You cannot serve God and mammon’ (13; cp. 1 Timothy 6:9–10). If we live for riches, they will eventually master us. If we make an idol of money, we will soon despise God. The love of wealth brought disaster to the lives of Lot and Achan (Genesis 13:10–11; 19:30; Joshua 7:10–26). The Word of God is quite clear – ‘You cannot serve God and mammon’ (‘riches’ – 13). Are you restless and uncomfortable in your Christian life? Could it be that you are trying to serve two masters, that you are trying to please God and man, that you are trying to serve Christ and the world? It does not work. Do get your priorities right.

God knows your hearts

Though the words of Jesus had been directed to his disciples, the Pharisees had also been listening (1). The Pharisees appeared to be very religious but they were lovers of money and the teaching of Jesus made them uncomfortable and they derided him (14). Ungodly men and women who despise the Word of God are similar to the Pharisees. They sometimes resort to scorn rather than to reasoned argument when they are challenged with the claims of Christ. The Lord Jesus told these hypocrites who sought to be right in the sight of men that they were wrong in the sight of God. Jesus said, ‘God knows your hearts’ (15). Their religion was a sham. The law and the prophets point to the Lord Jesus and John the Baptist had preached that the Christ (‘the Messiah’) was actually present. A great number were now pressing into the kingdom of God (‘everyone’ in verse 16 does not mean literally every Jew, but refers to everyone entering the kingdom of God). They were energetically entering God’s kingdom (cp. 13:24) but the Pharisees lacked this urgency.

The Pharisees professed to keep God’s law but they had their schemes to get around it and they imagined that they would still enter the kingdom of God (cp. Matthew 15:1–9; 23:23–26). Some of them manipulated Scripture texts to suit themselves. They took the statement permitting a man to divorce his wife because she finds no favour in his eyes (Deuteronomy 24:1) as a sanction to divorce their spouses for the most trivial and ridiculous of reasons (18). The Word of God teaches the sanctity and permanence of marriage. Permission for divorce was only given because of the hardness of men’s hearts and to give legal protection to the wife (cp. Matthew 19:8–9).

God’s Word is despised by many, but let us remember that though the ideas of men often change, his law, his holy standards do not change and will never pass away (17; – a ‘tittle’ is a small hook which is found on some letters of the Hebrew alphabet). God knows our hearts. Does he find within your heart a love for his Word and joyful obedience to his precepts?

There is a great gulf fixed

The Lord Jesus reinforced his warning against the love of mammon (riches) with the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. The rich man enjoyed a self-indulgent, opulent lifestyle but was lacking in compassion for a beggar. Lazarus waited at the gate of his mansion hoping to receive some scraps from the rich man's table while the scavenging dogs licked his sores (19–21).

The two men were different in death as well as in life. Lazarus died and he was carried to Abraham's bosom by angels. The rich man died but he went to Hades (hell) where he was tormented (22–23). Lazarus did not go to heaven because he was poor any more than the rich man went to Hades because of his wealth. Lazarus was received into heaven because of the grace of God in his life. God does not bestow his grace according to our possessions. When we die we do not cease to exist; we will be in the presence of God (2 Corinthians 5:8; Philippians 1:21–23) or in a conscious state of torment in hell.

The rich man thought that he could obtain mercy after he passed from this world, but it was too late. He was told that 'there is a great gulf fixed' between heaven and hell (23–26). He also made another mistake. He thought that if Lazarus were sent back from the dead to testify to his five brothers, they would then repent of their sin. The answer was clear – if they refused to listen to the Word of God ('Moses and the prophets') they would not be persuaded to repent even if someone rose from the dead (27–31).

Another man named Lazarus was later raised from the dead but the enemies of Jesus still refused to believe (John 11:45–57). Saving faith comes through hearing the Word of God (Romans 10:17), not through seeing miracles. Have you repented of your sin, or are you living for the passing pleasures of this world which could be snatched from you in an instant? It will then be too late to repent.

If your brother sins against you

The Lord Jesus reminded the disciples that any person who causes a believer ('one of these little ones') to stumble and thus fall into sin, will face a dreadful judgment (1–2; cp. Matthew 18:6–7). Unbelievers are answerable to the Lord for the effects of their behaviour on believers.

What must you do if your brother sins against you (3)? You must go and tell him privately and seek to win him over by his repentance and reconciliation to you. There can be no forgiveness for him until he repents of his sin. Forgiveness brings reconciliation between the aggrieved parties and the restoration of fellowship. Is there someone in the church with whom you are not talking because they have offended you? The Lord has not said that you must wait for them to make the first move. Go and seek them out and get matters put right between yourselves. You may have misunderstood them and discover that no sin is involved at all. Satan will seek to cause misunderstanding between believers.

What should we do when a brother repeatedly sins against us and yet expresses his sorrow and repentance for his deeds? We must go on forgiving him as long as he seeks our forgiveness (4). We also sin often against the Lord and need often to come to him for forgiveness. He is very patient with us and readily forgives; we must be imitators of Christ. If you refuse to forgive someone who has sinned against you and has repented of that sin, you must question your own salvation and what you know of the love of God in your heart.

J.C. Ryle comments, 'Let us leave the whole passage with jealous self-inquiry. ... How often we have given offence, and caused others to stumble! How often we have allowed unkind, and angry, and revengeful thoughts to nestle in our hearts! These things ought not so to be. The more carefully we attend to such practical lessons as this passage contains, the more shall we recommend our religion to others, and the more inward peace shall we find in our own hearts' (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 2, pages 223–224).

Increase our faith

The challenge of the words of Jesus (3–4) left the disciples painfully aware of their own shortcoming. They had been privileged to perform miracles but they were aware of the weakness of their faith (9:6, 40–41). They said to the Lord Jesus, ‘Increase our faith’ (5). The Christian life is far from easy and we are painfully aware of our failings but we must not be content with weak faith. We need to pray often, ‘Increase our faith.’ We may imagine that it requires great faith to work miracles, but it takes greater faith to live the Christian life (eg. to forgive those who have wronged us, whose repentance appears to be shallow; to trust God in perplexing circumstances).

Jesus spoke to his disciples of ‘faith as a mustard seed’ (6). A mustard seed is very small and yet grows into a tree which was large enough to shelter birds (cp. Matthew 13:31–32). ‘Faith as a mustard seed’ is a trust in God which does not give way to despair when prayer is not immediately answered. It continues to maintain fellowship with God and to pray fervently. It is not motivated by sinful desires when it prays; it expects great things from God and attempts great things for God. Let us pray that the Lord will increase our faith and give us grace to persevere in whatever he has given us to do. We will then prove God and find that he is strengthening our faith.

The Lord Jesus goes on to tell a parable about a servant who had been working in his master’s field. He comes in from the field and is obliged to prepare his master’s supper before he is allowed to rest and refresh himself. The master does not thank his servant for the work that is expected of him. Jesus is telling us that even when we have done all that he has commanded there is no room for smug self-congratulation. Whatever we do for the Lord is insignificant compared with what he has done for us. We are all unprofitable servants who have done only what was our duty to do (7–10). The earthly master does not thank his servant for his toil but our heavenly Master will indeed reward us for faithful service (Matthew 25:21, 23, 34–40).

But where are the nine?

The Lord Jesus was about to enter a village on the border between Galilee and Samaria when he was met by ten men who were suffering from leprosy. They remained at a distance because of their condition (cp. Leviticus 13:45–46); it is obvious that they had heard of Jesus because they called on him by name to have mercy on them (11–13). Jesus did not touch them nor command that they be healed but told them to show themselves to the priests who would be able to pronounce them clean (cp. Leviticus 14:1–32).

The men took Jesus at his word and as they turned to go on their way to the priests, they were healed. One of them, a Samaritan, seeing that he was healed, returned to Jesus. He praised God with a loud voice and fell at the feet of the Master, giving him thanks (15–16). Jesus asked, ‘Were there not ten cleansed? But where are the nine?’ (17). Only one had returned to give thanks and he was a Samaritan – belonging to a race despised by most Jews. Jesus told the grateful man to go on his way for God had honoured his faith (19).

Ingratitude to God is a terrible sin which should never be found among those who profess to love the Lord Jesus (cp. Romans 1:21; 2 Timothy 3:2). A thankful, praising heart glorifies God and brings great blessing (Psalm 50:23; Philippians 4:6–7, 11–12). J.C. Ryle comments, ‘Let us pray daily for a thankful spirit. It is the spirit which God loves and delights to honour. ... Above all, let us pray for a deeper sense of our own sinfulness, guilt, and undeserving. This, after all, is the true secret of a thankful spirit. It is the man who daily feels his debt to grace, and daily remembers that in reality he deserves nothing but hell, — this is the man who will be daily blessing and praising God. Thankfulness is a flower which will never bloom well excepting upon a root of deep humility’ (EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume. 2, pages 234–235).

Remember Lot's wife

The Jews were expecting the Messiah to establish an earthly kingdom and the Pharisees asked Jesus when it would come. He told them that the kingdom of God does not come with observation (eg. national proclamation, great military victories, etc.) but it was already among them. It is a spiritual and not a political kingdom. They were looking for a kingdom but failed to recognise that the King was standing among them (20–21).

The Lord Jesus later told his disciples that there would be troubled times when they would long for his coming. They were not to follow any who proclaimed that he had come (22–23). Church history has many accounts of false christs and heretical teachers who prophesied that the end of the world was at hand, but all their prophecies failed. Jesus warned the disciples that he would be rejected by the people of their generation and that he would suffer (25).

The kingdom of Jesus will be seen after he has come again to judge the world. He will come suddenly at a time when conditions on the earth will be like those which prevailed during the time of Noah and of Lot (widespread wickedness, violence and materialism, 26–30). The coming of Christ will be a great day of separation when the angels will take all those who belong to the Lord to be with him for ever (Matthew 24:31). Two people will be sleeping in the same bed or working together but one will be taken and the other left (34–36).

We do not know when Jesus will return but we must always be prepared. He urges, 'Remember Lot's wife' (32). Why are we to remember her? She had a righteous husband but she loved wicked Sodom with all its comforts and pleasures. She was brought out of Sodom but her heart was still there. She lost everything – her possessions, her pleasures, and her life (Genesis 19:15–26). If you are living for this world and its passing pleasures, remember Lot's wife. If the Lord Jesus returned tonight, would you be ready?

Men always ought to pray and not lose heart

The two parables in verses 1 to 14 teach us two vital lessons concerning prayer. The Lord Jesus tells the parable of the persistent widow to encourage us to persevere in prayer. He said, 'Men always ought to pray and not lose heart' (1). This encouragement follows the words of Jesus concerning his second coming and the long interval until that time (17:22). In troubled or perplexing times we may soon lose heart and give up praying through discouragement.

A widow went to seek help from a godless judge who was not too concerned to administer justice. She pleaded, 'Avenge me of my adversary' (3). He refused to be bothered with the widow's plea but she persisted in coming to him and he eventually saw that justice was done for her. If an unjust judge was moved to act on behalf of a persistent widow how much more will God hear and avenge his own suffering people ('his own elect'). God will never fail those whom he has chosen and loved ... with an everlasting love (Jeremiah 31:3).

Jesus asked, 'Nevertheless, when the Son of Man comes, will he really find faith on the earth?' (8). This does not mean that there will be no believers left on the earth by the time Jesus returns because Scripture does not teach this. The faith spoken of here is one that perseveres in the face of discouragement. Are you so discouraged that your prayers have become an empty, faithless exercise? Oh, come now to the Lord, confessing your unbelief and prayerlessness. Trust in him and you will prove his promises. J.C. Ryle wrote, 'Prayer is the very life-breath of true Christianity. Here it is that religion begins. Here it flourishes. Here it decays. Prayer is one of the first signs of conversion (Acts 9:11). Neglect of prayer is the sure road to a fall (Matthew 26:40–41).' – EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 2, page 253.

*Restraining prayer, we cease to fight;
Prayer makes the Christian's armour bright:
And Satan trembles when he sees
The weakest saint upon his knees.* (William Cowper)

God be merciful to me a sinner!

We must not only persevere in prayer but also come to God with humility. The parable that we have just read contrasts the prayers of a Pharisee and a tax collector. The proud Pharisees trusted in their own self-righteousness to bring them salvation and they despised others (9). Jesus directed this parable to all who have such a sinful attitude.

The Pharisee in the parable was not really praying to God. He prayed ‘with himself’ (11). He rehearsed his own good works as he smugly thanked God that he was not like other men or even as the tax collector (10–12). His ‘prayer’ did not contain any requests because he felt no personal need of God. J.C. Ryle observes, ‘We are all naturally self-righteous. It is the family disease of all the children of Adam. From the highest to the lowest we think more highly of ourselves than we ought to do. We secretly flatter ourselves that we are not so bad as some, and that we have something to recommend us to the favour of God. “Most men will proclaim every one his own goodness” (Proverbs 20:6).’ – EXPOSITORY THOUGHTS ON LUKE, volume 2, page 253.

The tax collector was deeply aware of his wretched state before God. He stood ‘afar off’ (13). Though he was in the temple, he kept his distance from the sanctuary because of his sense of shame. He hung his head and beat his breast in lamentation, saying, ‘God be merciful to me a sinner!’ (Greek = ‘the sinner’). He readily confessed his sinfulness and he cast himself upon God for mercy. He went home justified (right with God) but the proud Pharisee remained blind to the state of his own selfish, wicked heart (13–14); his visit to the temple had failed to do him any spiritual good.

Jesus repeated his warning made on another occasion when he was in the company of Pharisees. ‘Everyone who exalts himself will be abased, and he who humbles himself will be exalted’ (14; cp. 14:11). Genuine prayer involves humility and confession of sin to the Lord. A profession of Christianity without a heartfelt need of God’s mercy is not biblical religion. When did you last confess your sin to God?

He became very sorrowful

Some parents brought their children to be blessed by Jesus but the disciples wanted to send them away (15–17). We must never despise children or work among the young. Many Christians come to Christ in their youth and we must always be aware of the children in our church. The old saying, ‘Children should be seen, but not heard’ is not to be practised among God’s people. Children’s work is most important! Sunday School and similar mid-week activities provide an opportunity to bring the gospel to the young. If you are serving Christ in this way, persevere. There is great joy, blessing and reward in such work.

The young man who came to Jesus was rich and esteemed in religious circles; he was a ruler (probably an official in charge of the local synagogue, 18). He called Jesus ‘good’ which was a confession that Jesus is God (18–19). His wealth and religion did not meet his deepest needs. Why was this? He wanted eternal life but he also wanted to hold on to his possessions. Jesus reminded him of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth commandments and he claimed that he had kept all these from his youth (20–21). Jesus told him to sell all that he had give it to the poor and follow him and he would have treasure in heaven (22). His wealth was his ‘god’ and no one can serve two masters. We cannot serve God and riches (16:13). He became very sorrowful (23) because he was not willing to face up to the cost of following the Lord Jesus. This involves getting rid of anything that has become a ‘god’ in our lives.

Becoming a Christian is more than ‘making a decision for Christ’. It means taking up the cross (9:23–25). The cross is a symbol of self-denial. We must die to the old selfish life if we want to be disciples of Jesus. We must embrace his lordship. If Jesus is not Lord of all, he is not Lord at all. Many have turned away from the Christian faith disillusioned because they find the cost of following Jesus too great. Salvation is free but we must forsake our sin and be prepared to deny ourselves when we come to Christ. There is a price to pay for treasure in heaven, but what blessing is enjoyed by all who truly follow Christ!

The things which are impossible with men are possible with God

The disciples were surprised at the comments of the Lord as he warned that riches are a great hindrance to any who want to go to heaven (24–25). Jesus said that it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye than for a rich man to enter the kingdom of God. Some commentators have explained that the eye of a needle was a very narrow and low gate into the city through which a camel had to struggle on its knees if it were to gain entry. This theory was first propounded in the 11th century AD and it is without foundation. The Lord Jesus used this illustration to demonstrate that the work of salvation in the life of a sinner is miraculous in its nature.

The shocked disciples asked, 'Who then can be saved?' Jesus reassured them with a glorious truth: 'The things which are impossible with men are possible with God' (26–27). No one is too hard for the Lord to save! Jesus very soon demonstrated this truth to his disciples when he saved Zacchaeus, who was very rich (19:1–10). We must never lose heart when we encounter indifference to the gospel. The Lord is able to melt the hardest of hearts. He is able to save the vilest sinner and he can easily break the chains of sin which enslave people! We may think, 'Impossible,' but Scripture says, 'For with God nothing will be impossible' (1:37). Let us persevere in prayer and in our evangelism. The Lord has many a surprise for those who wait upon him.

Peter reminded Jesus that he and the other disciples had left all to follow him. Jesus assured him that God is no man's debtor. Those who sacrificially follow him will not only receive everlasting life in the world to come, but will be richly blessed in this life (28–30). Jesus again spoke of the suffering and death that awaited him in Jerusalem and of his resurrection the third day. The disciples were unable to understand or to take in his words, however (31–34). When we ponder the great sacrifice of Jesus to save us from our sin, is it too much for him to expect us to serve him, whatever the cost?

What do you want me to do for you?

The blind beggar (Bartimaeus; Mark 10:46) was sitting at the roadside near to Jericho. He heard the noise of the multitude following Jesus and asked what was happening. Though he was blind, he ‘saw’ what the scribes and the Pharisees failed to see – that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah promised in the Old Testament. When he addressed Jesus as ‘Son of David’ (37–38), he was acknowledging him as the Messiah (or ‘the Christ’ – God’s anointed One; cp. 20:41–44).

The blind beggar had seen none of Christ’s mighty miracles, but he had strong faith in the greatness, the power, and the willingness of the Saviour to heal him. He also had a persistent faith which did not give up when faced with discouragement. He was warned to be quiet but he cried out all the more (39). He was determined to make the Lord Jesus aware of his need. This is the pattern for us when we pray. We should always come to the Lord, trusting in his willingness and in his power to answer our prayers. The Lord knows our needs (Matthew 6:32) but he expects us to bring those needs to him in prayer.

Despite all the hustle and bustle of the crowd, Jesus stood still and called Bartimaeus to himself (40). The Lord Jesus was travelling to Jerusalem to suffer and to die on the cross, but he still took time to speak to this needy man. He asked him, ‘What do you want me to do for you?’ The beggar did not ask for wealth so that he could leave off begging. His greater need was for sight and he asked, ‘Lord, that I may receive my sight’ (41). The Lord Jesus gladly granted his request. He said, ‘Receive your sight; your faith has saved you.’ He was healed immediately and he followed Jesus, glorifying God (42–43).

God wants us to come to him and trust in him. Without faith it is impossible to please him (Hebrews 11:6). If the Lord said to you, ‘What do you want me to do for you?’ what would you say? Do you bring your greatest needs to God in prayer? Read Philippians 4:19; Hebrews 4:14–16 and be encouraged.

The Son of man has come to seek and to save

The Lord Jesus went through Jericho on his way to Jerusalem (1). Jericho was famous for its fragrant balm derived from the balsam tree and was an important trading centre which yielded high taxes for the Roman government. Zacchaeus held the influential post as chief tax collector for that region. His name means ‘righteous’ or ‘pure’ but he was a scoundrel who had lined his pockets to become rich through fraud (2,7–8). He may have heard that Jesus received tax collectors (who were hated and despised by most people; 15:1–2). He was curious to see Jesus but was unable to see him above the crowd because he was small. He was so determined however, that he climbed up into a sycamore tree (3–4; this fruit-bearing evergreen tree is not to be confused with the British or American sycamore trees; cp. Amos 7:14).

The Lord Jesus knew all about Zacchaeus. You can imagine his surprise when Jesus called him by name and told him to be quick and to come down from the tree because he wished to stay at his house. The crowd murmured against Jesus for going into the house of such a sinner whom they considered to be far from God. Zacchaeus was transformed as he came to faith in Christ and promised to give away half of his possessions to the poor and to restore fourfold to those he had defrauded (8). Jesus said that salvation had come to his house and that Zacchaeus was ‘a son of Abraham; for the Son of Man has come to seek and to save that which was lost’ (9–10). The disciples saw the words of Jesus demonstrated before their very eyes – ‘The things which are impossible with men are possible with God’ (18:26–27).

Do business till I come

Some thought that Jesus was going to Jerusalem to take power and to establish his kingdom but he told them a parable which showed such an idea to be false (11). Verse 14 contains the very words that would be uttered by the mob in Jerusalem before the crucifixion. This parable is not to be confused with the parable of the talents, where there are only three servants, each entrusted with a huge amount (Matthew 25:14–30).

A certain nobleman went to a far country to receive a kingdom for himself (new kings in Palestine had to go to Rome to have their claim to the throne confirmed). He gave a mina to each of ten servants and told them, ‘Do business till I come’ (12–13). A ‘mina’ was the equivalent of one hundred days’ wages for a labourer. There are three groups of people in this parable: the faithful servants of the king; an unfaithful servant and the citizens of the country, who were rejecting the rule of the new king (14,27). When he returned, he called his servants to account. He commended those who had increased their money by trading but condemned the servant who had hidden his money (15–24).

The nobleman represents the Lord Jesus Christ who has now ascended to heaven and will come again to receive his kingdom. His servants are professing Christians who are charged to do business (serve the Lord) in a hostile environment. When Jesus returns, there will be rewards for faithful service, but those who have had only an empty profession and have not served the Lord will be punished. The rebel citizens represent those who reject Christ. They will be banished from his presence to hell. We have a solemn responsibility to do business until Jesus comes again, even though we face many difficulties. We will have to give an account of our stewardship of the gifts that God has given to us. Let us be determined to serve him with all our might. If you are among those who continue to reject Christ and refuse to have him reign over you, do not be surprised when he rejects you on the day of judgment and refuses you admission to his kingdom.

Because you did not know the time of your visitation

When Jesus reached the Mount of Olives just outside Jerusalem, he sent two of the disciples to bring him a colt. The Lord Jesus knows all things and the disciples found the colt just as he had described. The owners of the colt may have been followers of Jesus, for they were willing to allow the two disciples to take away the animal when they said, 'The Lord has need of him' (28–34). Do you respond as willingly as they did to meet needs in God's work?

A multitude of disciples proclaimed Jesus as the messianic King as he rode towards Jerusalem, quoting Psalm 118:26. The Pharisees urged Jesus to rebuke these disciples for their enthusiastic acclaim of him, but he replied that if they were silent, the stones would cry out (37–40). Jesus entered Jerusalem to public acclaim, but many who welcomed him would have been among those crying out for his death a few days later. How different it will be when the Lord Jesus comes again! There will then be no opposition to his rule but every knee will bow before him and acknowledge him as Lord (Philippians 2:11).

As Jesus drew near to Jerusalem, he saw it in all its splendour with its beautiful temple and buildings. He wept over the wicked city which was to crucify him because he saw the desolation that would befall it. He prophesied that Jerusalem would be laid waste: 'They will not leave one stone upon another, because you did not know the time of your visitation' (41–44). This prophecy was literally fulfilled in AD 70 when the Roman army besieged the city, destroyed it and massacred even women and children after the Jews rebelled against their rule. The holy Son of God had taught and worked miracles in their midst but they had rejected him. When God's visitation of mercy is rejected, a visitation of judgment is inevitable. How tragic not to know the day of God's visitation!

A den of thieves

The Jews had become so corrupt in their religion that the temple precincts were more like a market-place than a place of worship. Foreign money was not accepted in the temple, and temple tax (Exodus 30:13) had to be paid in Jewish coinage. Money-changers charged exorbitant rates and sacrificial animals were sold at sky-high prices (Matthew 21:12). These people would have paid much money to the religious authorities for permission to operate within the temple precincts. Religion had become a racket! A place of religious worship had become a den of thieves (46).

The furious religious leaders sought to destroy Jesus but were unable to do so because of his popularity among the people (47–48). Judgment must begin at the house of God (1 Peter 4:17). We long for and pray for revival, but when the Holy Spirit comes in power, shallow religion is exposed and cleared out. This is painful. Let us be sure that our Christianity is living and real.

The people were very attentive to the words of Jesus as he taught them and preached the gospel in the temple (1; cp. 19:48). The chief priests and elders confronted Jesus and asked him who had given him the authority to do the things that he was doing (eg. cleansing the temple). He responded by asking them a question concerning the ministry of John the Baptist who had proclaimed him as the Messiah – was the baptism of John from heaven or from men? (4).

They knew that if they acknowledged that John's ministry was from God, Jesus would ask them why they had refused to believe him. If they denied the validity of John's ministry they would incur the wrath of the people who acknowledged John as a prophet. They refused to answer the question of Jesus and so he refused to answer their question (5–8). Men still reject the authority of Christ, but we must pray that they will come to faith in him and submit to his lordship.

I will send my beloved son

The parable of the wicked vine-dressers reflects the history of the Jewish nation who had enjoyed the special care and goodness of God for centuries. He had given them good laws and had favoured them above other nations, but they still rejected him. The servants in the parable represent the Old Testament prophets and John the Baptist. The wicked vine-dressers are those who attacked the servants of God and treated them shamefully (10–12). They mocked the messengers of God, despised his words, and scoffed at his prophets (2 Chronicles 36:16).

The owner of the vineyard then decided, ‘I will send my beloved son. Probably they will respect him when they see him’ but the wicked vine-dressers had no respect for him and they killed him (13–15). The Lord Jesus was revealing what was to happen to him that very week. The Jewish leaders did not respect the Lord Jesus. They were plotting the most terrible crime of all – the murder of the sinless Son of God. Just as the owner of the vineyard destroyed the wicked vine-dressers, so the Jewish nation would be rejected and the kingdom given to another nation (the church – cp. Matthew 21:43).

The Lord Jesus challenged his hearers with words from the Old Testament Scriptures, ‘What then is this that is written: “The stone which the builders rejected has become the chief cornerstone”?’ (16–17; cp. Psalm 118:22). Jesus, the stone which the builders rejected, has become the chief cornerstone (cp. Acts 4:11; 1 Peter 2:6–8). The chief priests and the Pharisees recognised that Jesus was speaking of them. They had rejected God’s chosen Messiah. They would be crushed by the ‘stone’ that they had rejected when the day of judgment came. They wanted to lay hands on him, but refrained for fear of the people who recognised Jesus as a prophet (19; cp. Matthew 21:46).

Do you respect the Son of God by obeying him, by giving him first place in your life? One day everyone will bow to him (Philippians 2:9–11). It is far better to submit to him now, than to be punished by him in the day of judgment.

Render ... to God the things that are God's

The religious leaders were now determined to set a trap for Jesus and they sent spies to watch him. These men pretended to be sincere enquirers but they attempted to make Jesus incriminate himself so that he could be accused of treason against Rome (20). These smooth-talking hypocrites said that Jesus taught the way of God truly but they persistently rejected his claims. They then asked him whether it was lawful to pay taxes to Caesar or not (21–22). On a different occasion, Jesus quoted the Old Testament to describe the Pharisees, 'These people ... honour me with their lips, but their heart is far from me' (Matthew 15:8). We will never deceive God with lip-service.

The Jews resented paying taxes to Caesar and if Jesus had said directly, 'Yes, pay your taxes,' the Pharisees would have branded him as a traitor who had no love for the Jewish nation. If he had told them that it was wrong to pay these taxes, they would have accused him of treachery against Rome. The wicked Jewish leadership later accused him of this very thing before Pilate (23:2).

The Lord Jesus saw through their craftiness and asked them to show him a denarius. This was a small silver coin which was worth the average wage for a day's work. He asked them whose image and inscription was on the coin and they admitted that it was that of Caesar (23–24). He then told them, 'Render therefore to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's' (25). His superb answer to their trick-question caused them to marvel (26).

We cannot shirk our duty to be law-abiding citizens and we must pay our taxes whether we like it or not. Even more important, we must render ... to God the things that are God's (21). He demands first place in our lives. Are we robbing God by not rendering money, time or talents to be used for his work (cp. Malachi 3:8)? He has done so much for us in giving his Son to die for us, and in saving us from our sins. He heaps blessings upon us and he has given us eternal life. Dare we rob God who loves us so much?

For he is not the God of the dead, but of the living

The Sadducees were very influential in Jewish religious affairs but they were materialistic and they denied true godliness. The high priests were drawn from their ranks and they controlled the temple which Jesus had cleansed. They had a score to settle with Jesus and their trick question was designed to ridicule the resurrection of the dead. Like many modern heretical church leaders they denied this truth. Such people often resort to ridicule in discussion because their own position is very weak.

The Sadducees esteemed the five books of Moses (Genesis to Deuteronomy) above the other books of the Old Testament. They raised the principle of ‘levirate marriage’ taught in Deuteronomy 25:5–10, in their attempt to make Jesus look foolish. When a man died childless, his widow was not to remarry outside his family, but be married to his brother. The marriage would enable the widow to bear children from the same flesh and blood as her deceased husband. This would hopefully enable her to bear a son to preserve his name and inheritance.

The Sadducees related their far-fetched story about a woman who married seven brothers in turn, surviving them all. They asked to which brother the widow would be married in the resurrection. His answer exposed their ignorance of Scripture. There is no marriage in heaven (35–36). He showed from an incident in one of the books of Moses (Exodus) that the dead are raised. He referred to the incident at the burning bush where God told Moses that he was ‘the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob’. The great patriarchs, though dead, were alive with God in heaven – for he is not the God of the dead but of the living (37–38). The scribes did believe in the resurrection of the dead and said, ‘Teacher, you have spoken well’ (39).

The Bible does not give a detailed description of heaven, but we do know that it will be wonderful beyond our wildest dreams (Philippians 1:21,23; 1 John 3:2–3; Revelation 21:4; 22:3–4). Let us be encouraged and praise God for giving us such a glorious future.

She out of her poverty has put in all the livelihood that she had

The Lord Jesus asked a question while he taught in the temple. The scribes taught that the Christ is David's Son but how could he be so when David by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit called Christ, 'Lord'. (41–44; cp. Mark 12:35–37; Psalm 110:1)? In other words the Messiah is more than a descendant (Son) of David. He is God! The scribes and Pharisees refused to recognise Jesus as the Messiah and they would not submit to his lordship.

Jesus went on to warn his disciples in the hearing of the people, 'Beware of the scribes.' (45–47). They loved all the pomp and the outward trappings of religion so that people would notice them and admire them ('that they may be seen by men' – Matthew 6:5). They appeared so dignified in their long, flowing robes and in their formal greetings when they addressed each other as 'Rabbi' (Matthew 23:7–10). They loved to have the best seats in the synagogues and the place of honour in feasts. They appeared to be holy by reciting long prayers but they were wicked. They extorted money from weak and vulnerable people such as widows. They would not escape the judgment of God and would receive the greater condemnation because of their hypocrisy (45–47).

Jesus looked up to observe the rich putting their gifts into the temple treasury box. He also saw a poor widow putting in two mites. These small coins were hardly worth a penny of modern currency but the Lord commended this poor woman as he spoke to his disciples. He said, 'She out of her poverty has put in all the livelihood that she had,' whereas many gave from their considerable wealth and still had much left for themselves (21:1–4). What is important in the sight of God is not how much we give but how much we keep back for ourselves.

But it will turn out for you as an occasion for testimony

The disciples were admiring the beauty and the grandeur of the temple and were shocked to hear Jesus say that it would be destroyed (5–6; Matthew 24:1–2). They later asked him two questions (7):

1. ‘When will these things be?’ (that is the destruction of Jerusalem).
2. ‘What sign will there be when these things are about to take place?’

Today’s reading is mainly concerned with the destruction of Jerusalem. In AD 66 the Jews revolted against the Romans who then besieged Jerusalem, destroying the city and the temple in AD 70. These were days of vengeance on the city which had rejected and crucified God’s holy Son (22; cp. 11:50–51). Many Christians remembered the warning of Jesus (20–24) and escaped from Jerusalem at the approach of the Romans and thus they were saved from the massacre.

The conditions which preceded AD 70 are not a sign of the end of the world. They are to be found in any age. There are false teachers, wars, rumours of wars, earthquakes, famines and troubles (8–11) and persecution of God’s people (12–19). How are we to react in uncertain, turbulent times or when there is persecution?

- We must be on our guard against deceivers. Jesus said, ‘Take heed that you be not deceived’ (8). Many are ‘taken in’ by false teachers today because they do not ‘take heed’ to God’s word.
- We are not to be terrified (9). God is sovereign and he is in control of all these things, even the persecution of his people. Jesus warned that some Christians would be hated by their own families, betrayed and even put to death, ‘but not a hair of your head shall be lost’ (16–18). This is not a contradiction but means ‘that nothing, not even our hair, is excluded from the domain of God’s tender care’ (Hendriksen). Let us persevere whatever suffering comes our way (‘patience’ in verse 19 = ‘endurance’). Our enemies may be allowed to destroy our bodies but they cannot destroy our souls (Matthew 10:28).
- Let us remember that God uses persecution for the furtherance of his kingdom and as an opportunity to bear gospel witness. ‘But it will turn out for you as an occasion for testimony’ (13).

But take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be weighed down

There will be frightening cosmic disturbances immediately before the return of Christ (25–28). Everyone living will see the Lord Jesus return, coming in a cloud with power and great glory (27). Every true Christian will be gathered by the angels to meet the Lord in the air, together with every believer from previous ages. It will be the day of resurrection and redemption for our bodies (28; cp. Matthew 24:31; John 5:29; Romans 8:23; 1 Corinthians 15:51–55).

Jesus used the fig tree and all the other trees as an illustration to prepare people in the first century for the destruction of Jerusalem which was to happen in their lifetime (29–33). When the trees come into leaf, it indicates the coming of summer. When the Roman armies approached Jerusalem (20–24), Christians who remembered these words of Jesus would know that the destruction of the city was at hand. When believers see the Antichrist at work (cp. 2 Thessalonians 2:3–8), they will know that Christ’s return is near.

Verse 32 is one of those Scripture verses which are not easy to understand. It would appear that Jesus was saying that the people of that time would still be alive when he comes again but they have long since died. Hendriksen points out that the word ‘generation’ can be translated ‘race.’ His suggestion that the verse means that the Jewish race will continue until all the things concerning the return of Christ are fulfilled is quite convincing, especially when Jesus had also been speaking about the destruction of Jerusalem, which may have appeared to cast doubt on the future of the Jews (20–24).

No one knows when Jesus will return but he warns, ‘Take heed to yourselves, lest your hearts be weighed down with carousing, drunkenness, and cares of this life’ (34). We may soon become burdened with worldly cares and sinful pursuits if we do not walk with the Lord each day. We must be watchful and prayerful and lead holy lives if we are to be ready for his coming (34–36; cp. 1 John 3:2–3).

Then Satan entered Judas

On the Tuesday before the crucifixion the chief priests and scribes were still seeking a way in which they could kill Jesus without causing a rebellion among the people (1–2; cp. Mark 14:1–2). Judas Iscariot was privileged to be among the closest associates of the Lord Jesus but he was not a true believer (John 6:70; 13:10–11). Though he acted as treasurer for Jesus and the disciples, he was a thief (John 12:6). It is dangerous to hear the teaching of Jesus and then to harden one's heart. Then Satan entered Judas (3).

The treacherous disciple plotted with the chief priests and captains of the temple guard to betray Jesus to them for thirty pieces of silver. Jesus had to be arrested when alone with his disciples and Judas knew that such an opportunity would come when the Lord Jesus went to the Mount of Olives as was his custom (4–6, 39; cp. Matthew 26:14–15). To be tempted by Satan or to be attacked by him is bad enough, but when the devil enters into a man, he is doomed to hell. The devil cannot enter a true believer who is able to resist him in the strength of the Lord (1 Peter 5:8–9). Judas had failed to heed the warning of Jesus concerning covetousness and he betrayed his Master for money (12:15). The love of money led to his ruin.

The first day of the Feast of Unleavened Bread (Thursday) arrived and Jesus sent Peter and John to prepare the Passover. They would have to take their sacrificial lamb to the temple forecourt to be killed. They had also to purchase unleavened bread, wine and bitter herbs and prepare the room and the feast. Peter and John did not know where they were to celebrate the Passover. The Lord Jesus told them that a man carrying a pitcher of water would be going to the house and that they were to follow him (7–13). This Passover meal was to have great significance. Jesus was to point the disciples to his own death when he instituted the Lord's Supper. This has been left to us as a precious ordinance when we remember all that he has done for us.

This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which is shed for you

When the Lord Jesus sat down for the Passover meal, he said to his disciples, ‘With fervent desire I have desired to eat this Passover with you before I suffer’ (14–15). He greatly loved them (John 13:1) and wanted them to be with him before he suffered. He indicated that this was his last Passover with them. There will be a greater feast, at which he will preside in the kingdom of God, in glory, and every Christian will be there (16; cp. Revelation 19:9).

The Feast of Unleavened Bread began with the Passover meal when lamb, unleavened bread and bitter herbs were eaten and three cups of wine were taken. The bitter herbs were a reminder of the slavery and suffering of the Israelites in Egypt. The lamb commemorated the protection of Israel’s first-born, and the unleavened bread was a reminder of the haste in which the Jews escaped from Egypt. As Jesus celebrated the Passover meal with the twelve disciples, he warned them that one of them would betray him and said, ‘This has been determined, but woe to that man by whom he is betrayed’ (21–23). Judas was on the slippery slope to hell.

Jesus gave bread and wine to his disciples which were symbols of his body and blood to be given for us at Calvary. He said to them, ‘Do this in remembrance of me’ (17–20; cp. 1 Corinthians 11:24–25). He is ‘our Passover’ (1 Corinthians 5:7). He has delivered us from a far greater tyranny than that suffered by Israel in Egypt. He has saved us from our sin and from the power of Satan (John 8:34–36; 1 John 3:8).

Jesus said of the wine that we take at the Communion service, ‘This cup is the new covenant in my blood, which is shed for you’ (20). At this service, we especially remember how our Saviour was tortured and slain to save us. The holy Son of God was punished for his people (Matthew 1:21; 1 Peter 3:18). We must never take our salvation for granted; it is free but we must never forget that it was purchased at tremendous cost. You were bought at a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God’s (1 Corinthians 6:20).

But I have prayed for you

Jesus had most solemnly spoken of his death as he ate the Passover with the disciples and had warned that one of them would betray him (15–23). It is almost beyond belief that the disciples began to argue as to which of them should be considered the greatest (24). This was not the first time that they had argued about greatness (9:46–48). He told them that they were not to imitate the ways of the world but to follow his example. True greatness lies in humble service. This lesson still needs to be learned because pride and power-seeking have ruined many churches. The Lord Jesus is so gracious and he commended his disciples for being faithful to him in his trials. He made the disciples see things in their true perspective; they were needlessly arguing when he was bestowing upon them a kingdom (25–30; cp. 12:32).

Jesus went on to say to Peter, ‘Satan has asked for you, that he may sift you as wheat. But I have prayed for you, that your faith should not fail’ (31–32). It is a great comfort to know that when Satan attacks us, we are not alone. Jesus is praying for us. Peter protested that he was ready to go with his Lord to prison and to death but Jesus told him that before the cock crowed he would deny him three times (33–34). Peter was full of self-confidence but he did not know his own heart (cp. 1 Corinthians 10:12). Though Satan wanted to have Peter, he was not allowed his evil desire. The devil is subject to God and he cannot touch us without divine permission (cp. Job 1:12).

The Lord Jesus told his disciples that they would need to make provision for themselves and that they would need courage (36; he was not literally meaning that they should rely on swords for their protection). Jesus also told them that the prophecy from Isaiah 53:12 was about to be fulfilled in him but their minds were still on swords. They misunderstood him, saying that they had two swords (35–37). Jesus said, ‘Enough of that’ (Hendriksen’s translation of the end of verse 38). We do not war according to the flesh. For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal but mighty in God (2 Corinthians 10:3–4).

Nevertheless not my will, but yours, be done

At the first Communion service, the Lord Jesus took the cup and after giving thanks, gave it to the disciples (17–20). That cup is for us ‘the cup of blessing’ (1 Corinthians 10:16). Jesus, however, had to drink a ‘cup’ of terrible suffering and sorrow in order to save us. In Gethsemane he was overwhelmed with anguish as he contemplated this cup which he had to drink. He said to Peter, James and John, ‘My soul is exceedingly sorrowful, even to death’ (Matthew 26:36–39). He was in such agony that an angel appeared from heaven, strengthening him. His sweat became like great drops of blood falling down to the ground (43–44). His love for us is so great that he submitted to the Father’s will to be punished for our sin. He said, ‘Father, if it is your will, remove this cup from me; nevertheless, not my will, but yours, be done’ (42). Jesus drank that terrible cup in order to give us a cup of blessing, a cup of salvation. When we think of what it cost him to save us, we should shudder at even the thought of sinning.

As the Lord Jesus roused his disciples who were sleeping from sorrow, Judas arrived with a great multitude who were armed with swords and with clubs (45; cp. Matthew 26:47). They arrested Jesus after Judas had betrayed him with a kiss. Peter, in an act of bravado, cut off the right ear of Malchus, a servant of the high priest. Jesus told Peter to put away his sword. He could call upon God and have twelve legions of angels to protect him from his enemies but he had to drink the cup given to him by the Father. The Lord Jesus, full of grace, healed Malchus (48–51; cp. Matthew 26:52–53; John 18:10–11).

The cowardly chief priests and elders had sent the armed crowd out to Jesus as if they were to arrest a robber. They had not touched him while he taught in the temple but this was the hour when they would have their own way with him, subject to the overruling providence of God (52–53). Jesus willingly went to death to save us from our sin. What amazing love! Let us respond with joyful obedience to his will, whatever the cost.

And the Lord turned and looked at Peter

After they had arrested Jesus, Peter followed at a distance and sat among a crowd gathered round a fire in the courtyard of the high priest's house. He loved his Lord, and no doubt wanted to see what would become of him. As he waited, he was accused on three occasions of being a follower of Jesus. Peter's courage deserted him. He denied that he had anything to do with Jesus and pretended not to know what they were saying (54–60). Before Peter had finished speaking, he heard the crowing of a cock, and the Lord turned and looked at Peter (61). Jesus had been betrayed by Judas and he was now disowned by one of his closest friends. That look would have conveyed grief and disappointment, but also love and yearning for the fearful apostle. That look melted Peter and he dissolved into bitter weeping as he remembered the words of Jesus, 'I tell you, Peter, the cock will not crow this day before you will deny three times that you know me' (34).

The Lord Jesus sees us at all times even when we sin. He observes our behaviour among those who are not believers. Do we honour him by the things that we say and do? Let us seek always to please him but also remember that he is always ready to forgive us when we truly repent of our sin. Peter wept over his sin and he was restored. He went on to accomplish great things for his Lord. How wonderful the grace of God to the fearful, faltering, sinning Christian.

Peter's denial is a warning for us to beware of self-confidence. We may think that we could never deny our precious Saviour but we must never forget that though we want to please him, we are capable of any sin. We have already seen that Jesus prayed for Peter (22:31–32) and it is encouraging to know that he also prays for us (Hebrews 7:25). If you are beset by guilt because of some sin in your life, come to the Lord Jesus and ask him to forgive you. He will accept you and freely forgive you when you repent of your sin and trust in him.

Are you then the Son of God?

Luke does not report the preliminary trial of Jesus which took place at night. The Sanhedrin then decided that Jesus should be put to death (see Matthew 26:57–66; Mark 14:53–64). After this trial Jesus was mocked, beaten and spat upon by those guarding him (63; cp. Matthew 26:67). They blindfolded him and taunted him to prophesy which of them had struck him and repeatedly blasphemed him (64–65). Why did the Lord Jesus submit to such insults when he could have summoned thousands of angels to destroy his enemies (cp. Matthew 26:53)? Remember, this was part of the suffering which he endured to save us from our sins. How marvellous his love for guilty sinners like us!

We often react very strongly when someone hurts us or when unbelievers ill-treat us, but what are these insults compared with the humiliation suffered by our great Saviour? We are called to suffer for the Lord, and when we are mocked and insulted, we must follow his example and walk in his steps. This means taking suffering with patience and committing ourselves to the Lord, the righteous Judge (1 Peter 2:21–23; cp. Philipians 1:29).

The trial at night had no legal standing and the council (Sanhedrin) assembled to condemn Jesus as soon as it was day. They asked him to say if he were the Christ (Messiah); if he agreed that he was, they could accuse him before the Roman authorities of setting himself up as a rival to Caesar. He replied that it was pointless answering them because, whatever he said, they would not believe him. He told them that the Son of Man would sit at God's right hand (66–67; cp. Daniel 7:13). They knew that by saying this he was claiming to be God, and they asked him, 'Are you then the Son of God?' and Jesus replied in the affirmative (69–70). The Sanhedrin had obtained what they wanted. They could accuse him of blasphemy and say that he deserved to die (71; cp. Matthew 26:65–66). Let us thank the Lord Jesus for all that he endured to save us and let us always strive to please him who for our sakes did not please himself.

But he answered him nothing

The chief priests and Jewish leadership needed the approval of the Roman governor for the execution of Jesus. They led Jesus to Pontius Pilate but did not press religious charges against him (they did this later – John 19:7). They accused Jesus of inciting the people to refuse to pay their taxes to Caesar (a deliberate lie – cp. 20:22–25) and of setting himself up as a king. This was another lie. The chief priests had plenty of religion but their hearts were wicked.

When Pilate asked Jesus if he were the King of the Jews, he agreed that he was a king but he went on to explain that his kingdom is not of this world; it is a spiritual kingdom (3; cp. John 18:33–38). Pilate found in favour of Jesus, but the chief priests and the crowd insisted that he was guilty (4–5). When he discovered that Jesus was from Galilee, Pilate decided to pass the case over to Herod Antipas, ruler of Galilee, who was visiting Jerusalem.

Wicked Herod had heard much about Jesus and was very glad for this opportunity to see him. He wanted to see a miracle performed and he bombarded Jesus with questions but he answered him nothing. Jesus had nothing to say to the murderer of John the Baptist (6–9). Herod had been given ample opportunity to repent and to obey God (Mark 6:20) but it was now too late. It is not enough to be interested in Jesus or curious about him. We must understand that we are sinners who need to be forgiven and reconciled to God. We must follow Christ, trust in him and obey him. God who is holy will not satisfy the whims of proud men, but he is full of grace to those who truly seek him.

The chief priests and scribes were vehement in accusing Jesus and a frustrated Herod joined his soldiers in mocking Jesus. We are not told why Herod and Pilate had been hostile to each other, but they were now reconciled. They were united in their opposition to Christ. They became friends but they were both the enemies of God (10–12).
